“In A Few Words”

Welcome everyone to the fifth volume, issue number one for January 2013. It has been August 2012 since the journal’s last issue was published. Therefore I felt that it would be better to publish this one sooner rather than later while waiting for the approval of other submissions.

This issues manuscript is entitled “Street Gangs, Organized Crime Groups, and Terrorists: Differentiating Criminal Organizations” written by Carter F. Smith, Jeff Rush and Catherine E. Burton. This article is very interesting and provides an educational perspective heretofore not seen. I am confident the readers will take a lot from this writing.

The next issue of The Investigative Sciences Journal is scheduled for the Spring/Summer of 2013. I encourage all my readers to submit your research, writings, case studies, etc. to www.investigativesciencesjournal.org or to me at Editor@InvestigativeSciencesJournal.org.

Thank you.
